You need to know the rulings pertaining to menstruation during Ramadan. Did you know that a menstruating woman is forbidden to fast, that her fast is invalid, and that she is required to make up for the missed days? If a woman starts her period when she is fasting, even if it is just a moment before sunset, her fast is void and she must make up for that missed day. If a woman feels the movement of her period before sunset, but the blood is not discharged until after sunset, her fast is complete, according to the most authentic opinion, as there is no ruling about internal blood. If a woman is menstruating when the dawn breaks, it is not valid for her to fast, even if she reaches a ritually purified state a minute after the dawn. If she reaches a ritually purified state before dawn and she fasts, her fast is valid, even if she does not take Ghusl (a ritual bath) until after dawn. This is similar to someone in a state of major ritual impurity due to sexual intercourse who intends to fast while in this state, if they do not take Ghusl until after the dawn has broken, their fast is valid. 	The Spirit of Ramadan Daily messages that cover what a Muslim should do in Ramadan, such as repenting often, seeking Allah's Forgiveness, and reciting the Qur'an.		 Repentance Repenting means returning to Allah. The one who returns to Allah fearing His torment is a penitent, the one who returns to Allah out of his feeling of shame is repentant and the one who returns to Allah glorifying His praise is an oft-returning to Allah. Repentance from each sin is obligatory. Allah says: "O you who have believed, repent to Allah with sincere repentance." Dear Muslim brother, haste to repent to Allah and rejoice, for no matter how great your sins are, the Forgiveness of Allah is greater. Allah says: "Indeed, Allah forgives all sins." If your sin has transgressed the right of another, haste to give him back his right, so that your repentance would be accepted.

	Best Manners Daily messages that include everything that refines and purifies the soul. Fasting is one of the most important acts of worship as it elevates a Muslim's morals. This message reminds Muslims of the Hadith of the Prophet (peace be upon him): "If one of you is fasting do not use obscene language nor act ignorantly. And if anyone insults him or fights with him, he should say: 'I am fasting'." (Related by Al-Bukhari)			Warning against the Traits of the Hypocrites Islam gives a great importance to morals and manners and considers them an act of worship. Anyone who has bad morals, and is known for lying, breaking promises, and losing trusts will be censured by society and disgraced as a hypocrite. It is related on the authority of Abu Hurairah (may Allah be pleased with him) who reported that the Prophet (peace be upon him) said: "There are three signs of a hypocrite: When he speaks he lies; and when he make a promise he breaks it; and when he is trusted he betrays (the trust)." (Related by Al-Bukhari and Muslim) It is better for a Muslim to perfect his Islam and be truthful in his words to refine his soul. And what is better for him than to keep his promises to gain respect and what is better for him than to honor his trusts to be acquitted of his obligations. This is how Islam calls a Muslim to be kind in his dealings and refined his morals.

It is related in a Hadith on the authority of 'Uthman ibn 'Affan (may Allah be pleased with him) who reported from the Prophet (peace be upon him) that he said: "The best among you are those who learn the Qur'an and teach it." (Related by Al-Bukhari) And another on the authority of 'Aisha (may Allah be pleased with her) who reported that the Prophet (peace be upon him) said: "Anyone who is proficient in the Qur'an is associated with the noble, upright, righteous angels; and anyone who falters in it, and finds it difficult, will have a double reward; one for recitation and the other for the hardship on the reciter."
